October 5, 2013

Welcome!

After nearly a year of planning and preparation, we are thrilled to welcome you to the 6th Annual AACU State Society Network Advocacy Conference.

The informative agenda addresses urology advocacy, current socioeconomic issues and technological innovations sure to benefit your practice. The sessions will not only provide information, but also serve as tools to use when you return home. We hope you will leverage the knowledge and resources obtained over the next 36 hours with colleagues concerned about the changes happening in health care and the socioeconomic issues they are facing.

We are honored to have you here and thank the AACU’s Corporate Members and healthcare industry supporters for their assistance. Speakers and panel participants similarly deserve our recognition and appreciation. For every presentation, we all know that hours of preparation are necessary. Finally, we are grateful for the support of the AACU Board of Directors, especially that of President Mark S. Austenfeld, MD, and the extraordinary effort of our staff led by Executive Director Wendy Weiser.

Thank you for taking time away from your patients, friends and families to attend this event. We understand this sacrifice and have done everything possible to make the 6th Annual AACU State Society Network Advocacy Conference a valuable investment of your time.

Sincerely,

Mark D. Stovksy, MD, MBA, FACS

Saturday, October 5, 2013
10:15 a.m. – 11:15 a.m.

Ruth Etzioni, PhD (Seattle, WA)
Affiliate Professor, Biostatistics and Health Services Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, University of Washington

Dr. Etzioni’s work focuses on statistical and computer modeling for policy development with a focus on Prostate Cancer research. A critical component of this work is the estimation of disease natural history and progression, which then forms a substrate for modeling comparative- and cost-effectiveness of alternative interventions. Dr. Etzioni’s models of disease have been used to estimate the lifetime probabilities of Prostate Cancer and its outcomes, study the extent of over diagnosis associated with Prostate Cancer screening, and quantify the roles of screening and changes in receipt of initial therapies in explaining population mortality declines. She is a member of three national panels on Prostate Cancer early detection, and serves on the American Cancer Society’s newly formed Guideline Development Panel. Her work on Prostate Cancer modeling is done as part of the National Cancer Institute’s Cancer Intervention and Surveillance Modeling Network (CISNET) consortium, for which she serves on the steering committee and is the Principal Investigator on the Prostate Cancer Coordinating Center. Dr. Etzioni is also Principal Investigator for the Biostatistics Core of the Pacific Northwest Prostate Cancer SPORE program.

Richard S. Pelman, MD (Bellevue, WA)
President-Elect, AACU

Dr. Pelman has been a Clinical Professor of Urology with the Department of Urology, University of Washington School of Medicine, since 2000. His relationship with the department began in 1986 after establishing his private practice in Bellevue, Washington. He has served as faculty at the Seattle Veterans Hospital and Consultant to the hospital’s Spinal Cord Injury Unit. Dr. Pelman attended the University of Washington for his baccalaureate degrees in Zoology and Anthropology, as well as his Doctor of Medicine degree, graduating in 1979 from the School of Medicine. Since completing his Urology training, he has successfully maintained a thriving private practice in Bellevue, Washington, with Bellevue Urology Associates. He is a Past-President of the Washington State Urology Society, and is President-Elect of the Northwest Urological Society. He is a member of the AACU, and serves on the Board of Directors as the Western Section Representative.
